Coins of Small Value. Doubtless the smallest coin in the world circulates in the Malay peninsula, simply a thin wafer made from the resinous juice of a tree, and has current value of about 1-10,000th of a cent. In the southern parts of Russia the peasants use a coin of such small value that a quarter of a million of them are worth no more than $1.25. The old Japanese mouseng was worth 1-112th of an American cent In Portugal the reis is the lowest standard of value, but no 1-refs pleces are coined. A 3-reis piece is equivalent to 6-100ths of a cent.

Men and women of sedentary habit as a rule do not take sufficient exercise, especially in the open, nor do they practice deep breathing, both of which have a direct effect upon the blood and its course through the body. Morning exercises should be taken reg ularly, including deep breathing. They should also be repeated at noon hour and on going home and again on retiring. .
